A GRAY AND WHITE COSTUME WORN AT NEWPORT.

Lovely frocks and hats are seen now at the fashionable functions at Newport, the season being at its height during August. At an afternoon affair last week this charming costume was worn by a young woman who was an April bride and whose frocks and hats are much talked of now. Replete with the witchery of feminine grace is this costume of white lace and net, over which is dropped a quaint overdress of gunmetal gray net caught in at intervals at the foot with satin ribbons of the same shade. Silver frogs at the front give the gunmetal overdress the effect of a coat. The hat is a model of black straw trimmed with gray ostrich feathers and one big pink rose.

In Woman's World.

Play has overthrown the playground. It is found to be much too big for the places the experts have so carefully for it. We have thought that the thing to do was to sweep up all the play that was lying around loose in a city's streets and pour it off into playgrounds with "supervisors" to stir it. But now we see that this takes care of only a small part of the ocean. The play congress, held at Rochester, brought together 250 delegates from all parts of the country, who, for the first time in a national way, "sized up" the biggest of the problem of public recreation.

Instead of pouring play into playgrounds, the congress sought to discover how playgrounds and the play movement can extend and stimulate the right sort of recreation in communities.

MISS LUCY RUSSELL.

Attractive daughter of Charles W. Russell, United States minister to Persia.

To Lehi there is a constant round of balls, parties, and cotillions. Trains are not worn at the Italian court, and neither feathers nor veils, but full evening dress is required, which must be of the smartest and freshest, as the light in the presence chamber is dazzling beyond description. Black gowns are barred, which fact is distinctly stated in the invitations. Ten o'clock is the hour named, and about nine a glittering crowd may be seen mounting the splendid staircase of the quinal palace.

Room after room is then passed through until the central chamber is reached, which has a mass of gliding and is illuminated by electric light and by thousands of wax candles. After this comes a pause, and then, as the hour approaches, the dame d'honneur "sorts" the different nationalities. Also she arranges that the married couples should be received in one room and the single men in another. This lady is, in fact, an Italian Oberhofmeisterin. At last a big door is flung open and the king and queen make their appearance. Their majesties walk about the rooms, and do not remain seated, as is the custom at Buckingham palace. From the August Strand.

KILLING THE GOOSE AGAIN.

The old family physician being away on a much needed vacation, his practice was entrusted to his son, a recent medical graduate. When the old man returned, the youngster told him, among other things, that he had cured Miss Ferguson, an aged and wealthy spinster, of her chronic indigestion.

"My boy," said the old doctor, "I'm proud of you; but Miss Ferguson's indigestion is what put you through college."—Everybody's magazine.

THE QUESTION BOX.

One of the most useful institutions in a large manufacturing house which is constantly on the lookout for new methods is its question-box, or letter-box. Any employee from the head manager to the office boy who has any suggestion or query about the conduct of the business is at liberty to write a note and drop it in that box. This has two effects on the employees. It gives them a feeling that they are part of the business, and not mere cogs in a machine, which is an excellent thing in any business or institution. Moreover, it encourages them to keep their eyes open, to discover new methods, to find out possible improvements, to evolve ideas. No business ever was the worse for as many ideas as could be crowded under its roof. Some of the most valuable improvements in the conduct of that establishment have been the result of suggestions made, sometimes in a crude form by its employees.

SALT LAKERS IN GOTHAM.

(Special Correspondence.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—On Tuesday evening last, at the home of Mr. Wesley Early on West One Hundred and Forty-fourth street, a very elegant dinner was served in honor of Hon. Champ Clark and wife of Missouri, old friends of Mr. and Mrs. Early, who were W. C. Tompkins of Los Angeles, and R. C. Easton, president of the California Standard Oil Co., which is represented by Mr.

Early in this city: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stanford, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Seaberg and R. C. Easton. Mrs. Early is in Los Angeles visiting her mother and sisters, and will not return until late in the fall; the friends of Mr. Early expressed great pleasure in their entertainment at his home. Mrs. Seaberg and Mr. Easton assisted in entertaining the other guests by singing several selections from operas and popular melodies of the day.

by friends who are going west.

A ne wplay by "Gene" oung, once of Salt Lake, now of the New York Times, is about to be tried out; this is not the first play Mr. Young has written; a sketch that made its appearance a year ago was pronounced good by all who witnessed it, and the results encouraged the author to try his luck again. The name of the new play will not be divulged until it is ready for production. Mr. Young and "Gene" Russell have desks side by side, in the Times building.

The entire Utah branch here participated in a picnic on Saturday the 2nd, to commemorate Pioneer day, going down to Brighton beach, where they indulged in a sea bath and other amusements during the afternoon and evening.

Toil Goodwin, once of Goodwin's Weekly, Salt Lake, now on the staff of a New York mining paper, is staying at the hotel Flinders, reports say he is making good in the special department given him to cover.

Elder Foulger, who has been in New Haven for some time, has been recalled to labor in the New York branch.

The editor of Hampton's Magazine is off on his summer vacation and Isaac Russell is filling his shoes until his return. Mr. Russell is on the Times' staff, and his duties there, with his magazine work, keep him a very busy man.

Several changes in the mission field have taken place lately: Elders Reuben Alpin and Duke have been changed from their former places to labor in New York and Elder Francis Witke will begin work at the mission house. Elder Reuben Miller, who has long been associated with the clerical work in the mission house, will go to Philadelphia for the summer. Elder Miller has made many friends in this city who note the change with regret, and hope he may be called to the city again before he returns home.

Emma Lucy Gates arrived Sunday and spent two nights at mission headquarters before sailing for Berlin on Tuesday, the 2nd. She begins rehearsals at the Royal opera on the 12th. She reports a very enjoyable trip across the country, having had as a fellow passenger, the Salt Lake actress, Miss Lella Davis, who was coming east for the season, with whom she enjoyed a pleasant traveling visit.
